DEALERS RENEW LIQUOR LICENSES

Fifteen Retail Saloons and Five Brewery Agencies Pay $8,000 to the City Today.

CASH GOES IN GENERAL FUND

Money Will Be Used To Defray Running Expenses of Municipal Government—Financial Condition.

With eight thousand dollars in checks and currency stacked on the counter the city treasurer's office today had the appearance of a national bank. The unusually heavy cash receipts came from the fifteen retail liquor dealers and the representatives of the five breweries in the city for their licenses. Each saloon is required to pay $500 and each brewery agency $100 annually for the right of engaging in business. The licenses issued in May, 1913, will expire at 11 o'clock tonight and the holders were required to renew them today before they could open for business at the usual hour Wednesday morning.

In compliance with the state law the retail dealers renewed their licenses with the county commissioners Monday. Each applicant paid a total of $205 to the county. Besides the county and city licenses the retail dealers are required to take out a government license costing $25. The brewery agencies are only required to pay the city license fee.

There are at the present five brewery agencies in Seymour, Jung, Cincinnati; Indianapolis Brewing Company, Indianapolis; Terre Haute Brewing Company, Terre Haute; Wetterer Brewing Company, Cincinnati, and the Evansville Brewing Company, Evansville. There is no limitation placed upon the number of brewery agencies that may be represented in a city but the number remains about the same here. Several others have engaged in business here but when they retired new ones were established.

The money paid in for liquor licenses is placed in the general fund of the city and is used to defray the running expenses of the city. Contrary to the belief of many, none of the money goes into the school fund. This year the cash comes in at a good time as the city exchequer is running at low ebb and no considerable amount will be received until the middle of June when the county treasurer makes his semi-annual settlement of taxes collected for the city.

A few days ago the city treasury was about empty and a call was made to the county treasurer for a monthly settlement. In compliance with the request, County Treasurer Belding forwarded a check for $2,000. The city will receive approximately $16,000 from the county for the general fund from taxes and thus far $4,000 has already been received. There is an outstanding indebtedness of $12,000 and the amount paid by the county treasurer will be used to pay off this temporary loan which was made during the months of January and February.

FREIGHT TRAIN RAN FIFTEEN MILES WITH ENGINEER DEAD

Frank Anderson, of Washington, Killed Instantly When Head Strikes Water Crane.

Freight train No. 98 on the B. & O. Southwestern Railroad ran fifteen miles at the rate of forty miles an hour Sunday with a dead engineer at the throttle. The train crew was unaware of the death of the engineer. Frank Anderson, of Washington, the engineer, was killed instantly at Carlyle, Ill., when his head struck a water crane.

The locomotive was of the "deckless" type, which prevents the fireman and engineer from seeing each other. Robert Payne, the fireman, did not learn of Anderson's death until the locomotive "choked down." He found Anderson lying in his seat, with his head split open. A blood trail was traced, and blood and hair were found sticking to the water crane.

This accident is the third to occur with locomotive No. 2006 in the last two weeks. A child was killed in Vincennes, and James Summers, a brakeman, was killed in the Washington yards. Anderson leaves a widow and two children.

MONDAY WAS LAST DAY FOR PAYMENT

Time Expired May 4th for Settling Semi-Annual Installments for Improvements Under Barrett Law.

TOTAL AMOUNT BECOMES DUE

State Board of Accounts Informs Treasurer That Additional Time Cannot be Allowed.

Property owners who took advantage of the Barrett law to pay for street, alley, sewer of sidewalk improvements and failed to settle the semi-annual installment Monday will under the law be required to pay a year's interest and pay off the entire cost of the improvement. Monday was the last day for making settlement and quite a number of property owners were given their receipts by the city treasurer. According to the provisions of the statute such settlements must be made on or before the first Monday in May and November. Several property owners, according to the books, failed to comply with the law.

Quite a large number of people in this city have taken advantage of the Barrett law, better known as the ten-year payment plan, to pay for improvements which have been ordered. Like taxes the semi-annual payments become due on the dates mentioned without notice and the city is required to take such action as may be necessary to collect the entire amount.

In the past additional time has been given persons who were negligent in making settlements but when the examiners for the state board of accounts were here several months ago they informed the city traesurer

FARMERS PLEASED WITH THE SHOWER

Say That it Came at an Opportune Time and Will Greatly Benefit the Growing Crops.

DID NOT INJURY BLOSSOMS

Crop Conditions Throughout State Are Very Encouraging and Big Wheat Harvest is Predicted.

As a general rule the farmers are rejoicing over the rain Monday night and declare that it was very beneficial to the growing crops. While the shower was heavy for a short time the blossoms on the fruit trees were not damaged seriously. It was feared that the heavy rain might knock them off the trees or damage them.

Orchardists are exceptionally well pleased with the outlook for the fruit crop. The buds are now far enough advanced so that there is less danger of insects affecting them and most of the orchardists have taken precaution by spraying.

Those who keep in touch with the development of the wheat say that the fields are looking fine and indications are highly favorable for a bumper crop. A large acreage was sown last fall and the winter months were favorable. In Jackson county corn planting has started and will keep the farmers busy for several weeks. Much of the ground is in readiness for the seed. It is reported that the hay crop promises to be lighter this year than usual which is an indication that the price will advance accordingly.

Crop conditions throughout Indiana the first few days of May as nearly approach a condition of perfection, crop experts state, as is possible. Reports from every section of the state indicate that winter wheat has attained a stand never before equaled at this time, that the outlook for spring wheat is also bright, while corn prospects were never better and the fruit bids fair to assume bumper proportions. In the last Federal crop report Indiana was given a higher grade on winter wheat than it has had in years and there is every reason to believe that the next crop report will show even greater possibilities.

The floods experienced last spring, to the dismay of the farmer, have been absent this season. Abundant moisture has fallen when and where needed, and as the winter wheat emerged from the winter months with an excellent growth, nothing has happened in Indiana to halt the plant's advancement. The acreage this season devoted to wheat and corn will net a huge increase compared with former years. It is claimed that there are 3,000,000 acres more wheat land in cultivation in the United States this season than ever before, proportion to the increase. Corn acreage is also to be larger, and corn planting is well under way in several localities, in fact has been about completed in places where more favorable conditions existed.

NEW BAGGAGE REGULATIONS EFFECTIVE ON I. C. & S. LINE

Excess Charges Will be Made For Trunks More Than Forty-five Inches in Length.

New regulations governing the transportation of baggage over the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern Traction Line became effective today. According to the orders all trunks or other boxes accepted as baggage which measure over forty-five inches long will be charged for under the excess rules. An exception is made, however, for a buggy whip which may be checked the same as formerly.

The new excess orders provide that a trunk containing goods to the value of $100 may be shipped without payment of excess. When the contests are valued at more than that amount an additional ten cents is charged for each one hundred dollars. A passenger may check a trunk valued at $200 without paying the excess rate but if the trunk is lost he can collect but $100. It is said that the new regulations were made because of the loss of a valuable case of diamonds some months ago.

National Rating League.

The Retail Merchants Association Monday evening approved the plan of the National Rating League as supplementary to the collection system which the Seymour Merchants have been carrying out. Messrs. L. B. Halsey and G. Lawrence are here in the interest of the Rating League. Their plan is to give a rating in the credit books they issue as to the standing of every debtor reported to them by business men for slow payment and for non payment of bills. They do not seek to publish the name of any person who honestly seeks to pay his bills but to make the list with the record of those who try to evade their payments. These lists cover a group of towns and when a person moves to another city in any part of the country their name is transferred to the book for the town to which he moves. This is done as a matter of protection to the merchant of the new town he has chosen for his home. So the non paying customer has small chance of escaping the record he makes in any town where he may reside.

FEDERALS PLAN TO BLOW UP RAILROAD

Tracks Will be Destroyed in Attempt to Keep Americans From Marching to Capital.

FUNSTON MUCH CONCERNED

Mexican Fugitives Arriving at Vera Cruz Report That Dictator is to be Overthrown.

Vera Cruz, May 5.—Mexican Federal troops have mined the railroad tracks from Vera Cruz to Mexico City in preparation for the destruction of the road in the event that the American forces attempt a march on the capital. This information was sent to the war department at Washington today.

The mines are reported to be placed a half mile apart and Mexican soldiers have been detailed to touch off the fuses should hostilities come.

These preparations and the throwing up of defenses which are daily making the position of the Mexican Federal troops stronger are a source of worry to General Funston, and it was understood that he would welcome orders to start for the Mexican capital at once.

Of the fugitives arriving in Vera Cruz from Mexico City, Mexicans outnumber all other nationalities. They insisted today that Dictator Huerta is soon to be overthrown.

A plot is now on foot in the capital, the Mexicans declared, to drive Huerta from power. General Jimenez Castro, the executioner of Jojutla, who ordered 149 mutineers lined up and shot, was said by some of the refugees to be attempting to seize the army. Imitating the dictator, the Mexicans say, the conspirators hope to reach the capital before General Villa and his rebels arrive. They do not intend to oppose Villa, but wish to share the benefits of the rebel victory in the looting that is declared to be certain to follow.

The outbreak of another military revolt in Mexico, headed by General Jose Refugio Velasco, who was recently driven out of Torreon by Francisco Villa, would not cause any great surprise in the Federal capital, according to other refugees who have arrived here.

Dr. William A. Jenkins, librarian at the State University, who will give an address at the open meeting of the Tuesday Club this evening, addressed the teachers of the public schools and a number of visitors this afternoon at the assembly room. He spoke on the "Construction of a Drama."

that the provisions of the law must be strictly complied with and he is not empowered to give additional time. In accordance with these instructions the city treasurer is left no other alternative than to proceed as provided by law.

Although the law does not require the treasurer to send out notices that the amounts are due statements were mailed to each property owner several days in advance of the date when they became due. This was done for the convenience and information of the property owners so that every one would be given amply notice of the requirements of the law and could make settlement promptly.

When a property owner elects to pay for an improvement under the ten year plan a separate account is opened in the books of the city treasurer and each payment with interest is duly recorded. As soon as the time expires for collection and the installments and interest are paid the money is turned over to the contractor or to the holders of the bonds in case they are sold by the contractors. The money collected under the Barrett law is at all times kept separate from other city funds and if the full amount is paid before the expiration of the ten years each bond is separately cancelled so that additional interest will not be collected. In some cities a deficit resulted because the Barrett law bonds were not recorded separately from the other city business. It was found that when the bonds were paid before maturity proper entry was not made and the city was required to pay the additional interest.

This difficulty was experienced when the bonds were sold in "blocks." In this city, however, the bonds have been sold separately and while such a plan results in increased work for the treasurer and is not as satisfactory to the purchaser accurate records can be kept at all times.

The usual rush on the last day for paying taxes was experienced at the county treasurer's office Monday. A large number of persons who had postponed the payment until the last possible moment crowded to the treasurer's office so they would be able to save the ten per cent. delinquent fees. The county treasurer will now begin to tabulate the receipts and distribute the money into the various funds.

manent street improvements coming on the city administration is giving considerable thought to the finances but believes that the running expenses can be paid and cost of the improvements settled for without the necessity of issuing bonds. The finance committee in anticipation of the proposed improvements set aside about $5,000 in the special fund to pay for the street and alley intersections. It is believed this amount will be sufficient unless a number of additional streets are ordered paved.

The street work for the first quarter was exceptionally heavy and a larger number of men were employed than usual. After this month the department will probably not spend as much and the work is always lighter during the fall and winter. The finance committee is watching the city treasury closely and is endeavoring to conduct all departments of the city as economically as possibly yet at the same time feels that money used for the permanent improvements is well expended.

DISEASES UNDER STATE CONTROL HAVE DECREASED

Hurty Says State Takes Better Care of Its People Than Citizens Do of Themselves.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, May 5.—The State of Indiana takes better care of its people than the citizens do of themselves, according to Dr. J. N. Hurty, state health commissioner. He says that while contagious disease controlled by the state are diminishing, the degenerate diseases, under individual control, are increasing in prevalence. He directs the public attention to the fact that increase in disease is just another form of increased toxation.

He writes as follows for the United Press:

Since 1900 the deaths from tuberculosis have decreased eight and four-tenths per cent. The typhoid deaths have decreased thirty per cent. and the dyptheria deaths seventy per cent. This is very gratifying, but we must not be satisfied, for we can do much better, and besides, contentment would mean stagnation, which is the beginning of retrogression.

While rejoicing over our fair victory we must take cognizance of other facts that our vital statistics reveal. These facts are that deaths from heart disease have increased twenty-two per cent. and brain diseases thirty per cent. This means that infectious and contagious diseases, which the state undertakes to cotnrol, are growing less, but the degenerative diseases, which perforce come under individual control, are increasing. We eat, drink, worry and drug ourselves into heart, kidney and brain diseases.

In the club car of the New York express after a hearty dinner of meats and rich foods topped with black coffee, fifteen men were gathered still further to disturb their health balance of heart, kidneys and brain with liquors and nicotine. Before retiring, I saw two of the, certain-to-be-elected candidates, for apoplexy or brights disease, take tablets to make them sleep. These suicides doubtless wonder why women are so much freer from the degenerative diseases than men.

Disease is plainly self-inflicted. It is latent in man at all times on account of his persistent violations of the laws of well-being. Insurance and other collected data shows that probably not more than twenty-five per cent. in any community, are doing a full day's work such as they would be capable of doing if they were in perfect health. This adds to the length of the school course, to the cost of production in all directions, to decrease in happiness and increase of taxes.

We are all fighting increased taxation by railing at the taxing powers, not realizing that ill health and disease with their attendant inefficiency, crime, insanity, pauperism and feeble-mindedness are the cause. Man has ever endeavored to secure strength by lopping off the branches of evil instead of laying the axe at the root.

To lessen taxes one must obtain better health—and with in the accompanying efficiency.

JOHN F. JELKE, OLEO KING GIVEN SENTENCE TO PRISON

Seven Employes Are Also Sent to Federal Prison for Violation of Revenue Laws.

Chicago, May 5.—John F. Jelke, millionaire manufacturer of oleomargarine, who was recently convicted with seven of his employes of having violated the Federal revenue laws, stood before Judge Geiger in the United States District Court, awaiting sentence, and asked justice for himself and clemency for his associates.

Jelke was fined $10,000 and sentenced to two years in the Leavenworth Penitentiary, the maximum penalty. His co-defendants were fined $2,500 each and execution of all the sentences was stayed by the court for thirty days to permit an appeal.

Those fined were William M. Steele, general manager of the John F. Jelke Company; Harry E. Hitchings, salesman; Hugh D. Cameron, Milwaukee representative; D. B. Tullis, former salesman; W. L. Lillard, former manager of the George P. Braun Company, taken over by Jelke, and Fred Rapp, former salesman from the Braun Company.

Called to the bar of the court, Jelke was asked if he had anything to say before sentence was imposed.

"I have been in business in this community for more than twenty years," was the reply of the chief defendant. "I have had an honorable career. I do not ask anything for myself but what is justice. For the other defendants, I ask clemency, as I take the entire responsibility of the case on myself."

CARRANZA ELMINATED FROM THE PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

South American Envoys Send Telegram Withdrawing Invitation to Have Representation.

Washington, May 5.—Gen. Carranza and the Constitutionalists have been practically eliminated from the proceedings of the three South American envoys, who have undertaken to solve the Mexican problem of diplomacy.

In a telegram to Gen. Carranza, the mediators announced that in view of his refusal to agree to an armistice with Gen. Huerta, they withdrew their invitation to him to send a personal representative to participate in the mediation negotiations.

The mediators told the Constitutionalist that as long as he maintained his present attitude, they must decline to treat with him. Gen. Carranza had inquired in a note to the envoys what subjects a special representative might be required to discuss, pointing out that if the general problem of pacifying Mexico were to be approached he could not authorize any one to participate in the negotiations.

He reiterated that he would consent to mediation only on the incidents which had brought about a controversy "between the United States and Mexico," holding that he was the constitutionally chosen leader to whom complaint about the insult at Tampico and other offenses originally should have been made.

In their telegram tonight the mediators quoted Carranza's last note to them, adding that as long as he maintained that attitude they must decline to receive a representative from him as they could not separate the incidents at Tampico and elsewhere which had brought about friction between Mexico and the United States from the general subject of pacifying Mexico.

Earlier in the day it became known that in view of the unyielding attitude of the Constitutionalists mediation virtually would be limited to the arrest of American marines at Tampico and other offenses which had brought the Huerta government and the United States to the verge of war.

The language of the telegram sent by the mediators leaves open to Carranza, however, the privilege of sending a special representative to participate in peace negotiations whenever he is willing to arrange an armistice with Huerta.

J. M. Baker Dead.

James M. Baker, father of Mrs. M. E. Black, died Monday afternoon at the home of his daughter in Aurora, where he went on a visit at Christmas time and was taken ill soon afterwards. His condition was such that he was never able to be brought to his home here. He was born in Dearborn county, near Aurora, seventy-six years years ago, and made his home here with his daughter, Mrs. Black, since the death of his wife eight years ago.

Mr. Baker was a veteran of the civil war, serving in Co. I. 83rd Indiana, and was among the first to enlist when the first call was issued. He suffered for some time with heart trouble brought on by the exposure and hardships of army life.

Three children, Mrs. M. E. Black, of this city, Mrs. Thomas Owens, and Louis Baker, of Aurora, eleven grandchildren and two great grandchildren survive. Mr. Baker had been received into the fellowship of the First Baptist church of this city just a week ago.

The funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at the Baptist church at Aurora. Burial in the cemetery there.

Although the rain interfered somewhat with the corwd at the carnival last night, quite a number visited the park during the early part of the evening. The company is getting all of its attractions in first class condition.

The prosecutor's office was much surprised that Charles Staton, charged with the theft of a horse and buggy belonging to Louis Fox, pleaded not guilty in circuit court yesterday. Staton was arrested near Jeffersonville and was driving the horse at the time he was taken in custody by the officers there. He admitted his guilt here and wrote his mother that he expected to serve a long sentence. Since he has pleaded not guilty it will be necessary to summon the officers from Jeffersonville to prove his arrest there.

WOMAN'S FRANCHISE LEAGUE DISCUSSES EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Five Hundred Members Expected at Indianapolis for Third Annual Convention.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 5.—Nearly every community in Indiana sent its delegation of women here today to participate in the third annual convention of the Woman's Franchise League of Indiana, which will be in session four days in the Claypool hotel. Much of the time will be devoted to discussions of organization methods, looking towards the time when a concentrated attempt will be made to obtain the vote for Indiana women.

The league firmly believes that in case of a constitutional convention votes for women would be obtained. For this reason, agitation for such a convention will be started tonight when Prof. Ross F. Lockridge of Indiana University, addresses the delegates on the subject: "Indiana's Need of a New Constitution."

"Our summer fight will be on that line," said Mrs. G. M. Henderson, secretary of the league, today. She was speaking of the attempt to obtain a constitutional convention for the state.

Mayor Bell of Indianapolis, will welcome the delegates tonight and Miss Vida Newsom of Columbus, will give greetings from the Indiana Federation of Clubs. Mrs. Meredith Nicholson will respond.

One of the most interesting sessions will be tomorrow night when Mrs. Antoinette Funk, a Chicago attorney, addresses the convention. Mrs. Funk is a practical suffragist, having been experienced as a member of the successful lobby before the Illinois legislature last summer. Mrs. Funk will tell how the three women members of that lobby sounded every member of the Illinois house and senate, how they pulled political wires, coaxed and pleaded with the obdurate ones until they had obtained a promise, and how on the final day after the resolution had passed the senate and had come to a vote before the house, the three women sat in the galleries, praying that each legislator as he came to vote would live up to his promise.

At the final conference on Friday Mrs. William S. Bryer, of Terre Haute, will present the report of the resolutions committee. This report doubtless will take a firm stand for the constitutional convention. It probably will bind the women to concentrate their efforts to that end.

Leaders today predicted that five hundred women would be in attendance on these sessions. There were about three hundred last year.

Boy Scouts.

The Boy Scouts and Pathfinders will have their regular meeting at the high school gymnasium Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. At 7:30 Rev. R. W. Merrifield, of the department of research in sociology at the Jeffersonville Reformatory will speak to the boys on the subject, "The Value of Boy Scoutdom." Mr. Merrifield was a Scout master for several years and he is in hearty accord with boys' life and work. A special invitation is extended to the parents of the Seymour Scouts and Pathfinders and all others who are interested in the boys of our city to attend and hear this address. There is no charge, and it is hoped a large number of adults may be present as guests of the Scouts.

AN ATTRACTIVE COSTUME FOR AFTERNOON OR STREET.

Although there is quite a fad just now for contrasting bodices and skirts, for street wear, after heavy wraps have been laid aside, there will be a demand for the one-toned costume in one of the heavier silks, a light-weight serge or gabardine. One of the new figured moires is suitable to a frock of this description or a fine serge combined with satin; gabardine is new and has taken a strong hold on the fancy. This costume, 8283-8284, is developed in a dark blue gabardine with the vest in a figured tapestry in which there are touches of yellow. The bodice is cut kimono, and the skirt is a three-piece design with an applied circular tunic. No. 8283 requires to make in size 36, 1⅞ yards of 36 inch material; the skirt (8284) may be made in size 24 with 4 yards of 36 inch material.

The attractive feature of No. 8319 is the draped sash; in front it is arranged in three wide pleats held in place by the panel, and it tapers down in back to form two ends, which may be knotted or tied in a bow. As shown here, the dress is made up in dark blue silk poplin with contrasting sash, collar and cuffs.

For a child of 8 the design requires 1⅞ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8283—sizes 34 to 42
No. 8284—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8319—sizes 4 to 10.
Each pattern 15 cents.

These patterns for sale by the Racket Store. L. F. Miller.

The Governor's Lady

A Novelization of Alice Bradley's Play

"Yes," agreed Mary, "but it's awful fighting my husband. What's the matter with you, Bob? You used to tell me a lot about Miss Strickland, and lately you—have you had any trouble?" she asked, kindly, forgetting her own sorrow at the thought of the possible unhappiness of this young man whom she loved as tenderly as if he had been her own son.

"Don't let us talk about her," Bob objected.

"All right, Robert." Mary attempted to be cheery as she saw how abstracted and dejected Bob was. "Dinner will be ready in a minute and you can sit right down."

"I won't give in to him!" she declared as she put on an extra plate and knife and fork. "I'll never give him that divorce."

"Don't you ever think of anything else?" Hayes questioned, soberly.

"No; it's no use, Robert; I get hot and cold hating my husband when I think how he is treating me. I know it's wrong, but I do! Sometimes when I wake up suddenly in the night and see the old room and remember that he's living at his club and enjoying life and me here miserable, I just get sick hating him."

"Now, auntie"—Hayes was anxious to divert her attention—"I wouldn't think of that. You have the best of him. You've got him beaten. I have a good lawyer for you, and he'll be out to see you today. You know I'd take the case myself, but it wouldn't be professional. You've positively made up your mind to fight the divorce to a finish?"

"Tooth and nail!" Mary's answer came through set teeth.

"Then you've got him. He can't fight a woman in the courts in his position, with his nomination before him."

"I've got him, have I?' -Mary was all eagerness now.

"You're sure of it? Was he very mad about my coming here? Has my lawyer seen his lawyer?"

Hayes answered the last of her many questions first. "They met today."

"Did you get me two lawyers, Rob?"

"Yes, I got two. I got a whole firm."

"Do you think I need another—so's to be sure?"

Hayes laughed.

"You have all you need, auntie."

"Thank God, I got the telephone in so they can call me up." Mary was almost feverish in her excitement. "I couldn't go on the witness stand. He doesn't know that, though. Any signs of Dan going back to the house, now I'm out of it?"

The bell that never hesitates to interrupt at any moment rang insistently. Mary jumped about in her excitement and finally took down the receiver. She dropped it as hastily and backed away.

"You'd better answer it, Rob."

"It's Slade," Bob declared, holding his hand over the transmitter. "He wants to talk to you."

"No, siree!" Mary was vehement. "Cut him off! I ain't going to talk to him. I've got two lawyers. Tell him to have his lawyer talk to mine. My heart's so hard against him—I couldn't listen to the sound of my own voice," and she sank weakly into a chair as Hayes continued to converse with Slade. "No, she says not," he was saying. "No, I am not out here winding her up or advising her," and he banged up the receiver.

"What'd he say?" Mary was wringing her hands in her uncontrollable excitement.

"Oh, he just called me a skunk and cut off," answered Hayes, as he nonchalantly lighted a cigarette. He paced up and down the room for a moment and then turned on her:

"God! I'd like to haul him through every court in the country. The scoundrel!"

"I don't like to hear you talk like that about him, Rob," Mary remonstrated. "He's been a pretty good friend to you."

"Well, perhaps." Hayes tried to calm herself for her sake. "He's all right, I suppose."

"I dunno that he is." Mary's mood was variable. "When I think of that divorce—"

"Slade's coming down here today, aunty. He declares you're here under his very eyes, and he's determined that you shall go away, and desert him and give him the opportunity to divorce you. He says the whole country will know of the trouble unless you go away. That's what he said over the phone."

"Well, I'll stay right here. I can't get over it, Rob," and her voice quivered in spite of herself. "I can't get over the suddenness of it; his wanting that divorce happened just like that," and she snapped her fingers to illustrate her meaning. "Before that he never thought of it. It's curious," she paused, thoughtfully; "do you know that sometimes when I get to thinking about it—I—something comes over me, an idea that—shut that outside door, Rob," she commanded before she would continue. "I wonder if there isn't—I declare I'm ashamed to say it—but I wonder if it could be possible that there's—some woman," she finally managed to get the word out.

"Auntie!" It was not necessary for Hayes to feign surprise, for, although he knew the situation, he had been confident that such a thought had never entered Mary Slade's pure-minded thoughts.

The pent-up emotion of days broke, and Mary sank sobbing into a chair, burying her face in her hands. With the expression of the thought that heretofore she had never admitted even to herself, her self-control vanished and she cried out desperately:

"Well, what do you think he wanted that divorce for so suddenly?"

"People usually do get divorced when they can't get on, don't they?" Hayes was willing to lie to shield her from the knowledge that he knew would be the bitterest part of all

"Sometimes I wonder," Mary continued, reflectively, "sometimes I'm almost positive that—No! Slade isn't that sort of a man. My husband isn't that sort of a man, Rob."

"No, of course he isn't."

"You didn't know what I was going to say," she objected.

"Yes, I did. About women."

"He never noticed any other woman," she told herself positively.

"No," Hayes agreed.

"You haven't heard of anything like that, have you?" she questioned.

"No, no, I haven't." Hayes was finding the cross-examination extremely trying, convinced as he was that Mary must be saved from the knowledge of Katherine at any cost. "If there were anything, you'd hear it. Don't worry."

"Robert," and she looked at him intently. "Would you tell me if—"

"No. I would not!" asserted Hayes vigorously. "Haven't you got enough trouble now?"

"But, Robert, you are my friend, aren't you? You ought to—"

He was saved from any further questions along that unwelcome line by the sound of the doorbell and a moment later Merritt opened the door without ceremony.

"Well!" Hayes was far from cordial.

"I beg your pardon for entering so abruptly." Merritt was the same old talkative, suave, good-fellow, I'm-your-friend-Merritt, "but I was bound to see Mrs. Slade. I'm for the Slade family—but I'm for all the Slade family, so I hope you won't make a stranger of me."

Mary was politely indifferent and Hayes, with back turned, was tapping his foot uneasily on the floor. Altogether not the warmest welcome a man ever received.

"This man is likely to publish anything you may say, auntie," Hayes warned over his shoulder.

"Oh, come now, Hayes," objected Merritt, "I'm here on a perfectly friendly visit. I well remember this little place," and he looked about. "I stopped here some years ago and Mr. Slade brought us a drink of water. Slade was in his shirtsleeves, I remember. Big man, Slade!" and he eyed Mrs. Slade inquiringly. "Big man!" he exclaimed again as Mary remained silent, her features giving no clew to her feelings.

"Well, my wife has gone off to Europe on a long-extended tour." Merritt was determined to make conversation if he had to do it alone. "I'm quite alone. In fact, we're in the same boat—alone."

"I'm not," Hayes burst forth. "Thank God, I've got my troubles, but I'm not married, so I'm not quite alone."

Merritt laughed good-naturedly, glad at any kind of response.

"Pardon me, Hayes," he cleared his throat nervously. "I'd like to talk with Mrs. Slade."

"Oh, all right," and with his hands thrust into his pockets, Hayes strolled leisurely into the kitchen.

"My dear little woman," Merritt began in his most engaging manner, as soon as Hayes had left the room. "You have my deepest sympathy and most profound respect. Your position is touching, if you'll excuse me for saying it. I can see your side of it, too. Now the point is this: A week ago when you called at the senator's house, Slade had just said you were going East to live permanently. I must say very few women—very few—would do as much for a man. For instance, Mrs. Merritt, I know, wouldn't. I needn't tell you that the whole community will admire you for your reserved dignity—if you go, Mrs. Slade."

"I'm not going," Mary's voice was ominously quiet.

"You're going to oppose the divorce?"

"Yes," came the soft answer.

"Mrs. Slade," Merritt began, and took a quick, apprehensive look in the direction of the kitchen. "Take a hint from me! You give it to him! Soak it to him! He's used you like a dog! I came here today to find out if you meant to fight him. I had an idea that you did. I'll help you do him up."

"You're talking against the man I lived with most of my life," and she fixed an angry eye on him. "You get right out of my house, sir."

"But—" protested Merritt, rising.

"Go right along, sir! Go along!" and Mary raised her voice as her temper got the better of her.

Hayes, hearing the loud tones, appeared at the kitchen door munching a biscuit.

"How dare you!" he heard Mary exclaim. "You can't abuse my husband to me!"

Merritt looked once at Hayes and once at Mary. Then he went.

Hayes stood taking large bites out of the biscuit, looking at Mary with an amused smile.

"I'll say all I want about Slade," Mary sputtered. "But I wont let anyone else do it."

"I've noticed that," returned Hayes, dryly.

"And I can tend to my own affairs, too."

"I've noticed that, too," still dryly.

"I'm kind of wound up," Mary confessed. "I'll just wash my face and cool off. Then we'll have dinner, Rob."

She had no sooner left the room than a knock came at the door. It appeared to be Mary Slade's day "at home."

"Oh, the dev—" muttered Rob as he started toward the door. "These d——d curious neighbors!"

He opened the door abruptly. Instead of the gossiping neighbors he had expected he was confronted by Katherine Strickland.

VIOLIN MAKER SAYS "STRADS" ARE ALL GONE

Imitations Marked "Genuine" Are Sold For $5,000 According to Knute Reindahl.

By United Press.

Chicago, May 5.—Take it from Knute Reindahl, president of the newly formed American Academy of Violin Makers, that the famous old Stradivarius fiddles exist today only in fiction. The violins labeled "Strads" and now sold at prices ranging well above $5,000 are the output of a Budapest violin-maker who practically contorls an "ancient violin trust" according to Reindahl.

"Some peole don't seem to know that the civil war is over—also that Stradivarius, Guarnerius and all the old violin-makers are dead—and have been dead for a long, long time," said Reindahl.

"They seem to think that Stradivarius left several cargoes of his fiddles, enough to supply the world forever.

"Now the truth of it is that if I wanted half a dozen "genuine" Strads, I could cable to a man in Budapest and he would send them, each one marked at $5,000 or over, with the understanding that I would get half of whatever I could get out of them.

"Not long ago I ran across a violin I had made myself, with my label removed, and a "genuine" Stral label substituted. It sold for $5,000."

BECKER AGAIN ON TRIAL FOR ROSENTHAL'S MURDER

New York Police Lieutenant Charged With Murder of Herman Rosenthal.

By United Press.

New York, May 5.—Ex-Police Lieutenant Charles Becker today was called for a second trial on charges of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal. The four men who shot Rosenthal down in the glare of Broadway's lights on Forty-Second street, Whitey Lewis, Gyp the Blood, Lefty Louie and Dago Frank Cirofici have paid the extreme penalty with their lives. Becker after being adjudged guilty by a jury and that judgment affirmed by the State Supreme Court, was granted a new trial on technical grounds by the State Court of Appeals, one member of which tribunal voting against another trial for the convicted policeman. District Attorney Whitman today was prepared to take personal charge of the prosecution. It was understood that he will attempt at this second trial of Becker to introduce as evidence, facts regarding an alleged conspiracy to have the gunmen saved by perjured testimony, one of these witnesses, Karl Dresner, having confessed having been paid to give false witness.

Eat Up Clothes!

You'll Say, "I Was a Crazy Slave for Doing This!"

The new discovery, Washee Wafers, is freeing thousands of women from the crazy wash-board system of cleaning clothes! Washee Wafers are creating a furore all over the United States. They are the only washing material ever known since the age of clothes, that does not eat up more of the clothes than it does the dirt on them. Washee Wafers are a magical wonder. All rubbing and scrubbing of clothes is over forever—positively, absolutely—no "ifs or "ands" about it. You put a Washee Wafer in the boiler with your clothes, let them boil for 25 minutes. Your wash is done. Rinse out your clothes, hang them up to dry.

Washee Wafers

The Greatest Washing Discovery Ever Known

You'll say you never in your life saw clothes so white And mind you, you didn't have to even wet your hands—until you rinsed out your clothes. Now just think, Washee Wafers contain no lye, no potash, no caustic soda, no acid—nothing in the wide world that could possibly injure the most delicate fabric. This is because Washee Wafers do not "eat out" dirt; they form millions of tiny bubbles in the water that are constantly exploding. This is a new, scientific discovery. These tiny explosions, loosen and remove, better than any human hand or machine, every particle of dirt in every part of your clothes, no matter how badly the dirt may be "ground" into them. All the back-breaking, hand-tearing rubbing you could do, would be unnecessary—just crazy work.

Washee Wafers clean woolens, silks, linens, cottons, any cloth with equal ease. They positively save your clothes from being "eaten up." Any housewife, even who can't do much work, can now do her own big family washing in 40 minutes. The only work is rinsing the clothes and hanging them up. Save laundry bills, save work, save time. See the modern "miracle" work, and get a package today.

Peg O' My Heart.

There is a genuine treat in store for theatre-goers who visit The Majestic Theatre on Wednesday, May 6, where "Peg O' My Heart" will be the attraction. It is a charming, sweet story of youth, depicting a romping, madcap, bewitching Irish girl, as Irish as St. Patrick's day in the morning who is turned over to the care of some aristocratic English relatives. They are stiff and artificial, and she is as sweet and natural as a healthy country girl can be. They dislike her, but having suffered financial reverses, endure her presence among them for the sake of the monthly stipend that goes with her. But Peg holds her own with jaunty pride, and in the end, by her generosity and big heartedness, wins them over, and what is more, wins a gallant gentleman, who is carried away by her charms.

Miss Blanche Hall will be seen in the title role ably supported by Lionel Glenister, Vivian Gilbert, T. Jerome Lawler and Herbert Gelinas. The production is an exact counterpart of the one playing at the Cort theatre in New York.
